THE COUNTRY CLUB.

Every man to his taste in the matter of golf but the consensus of opinion is that Haleiwa offers greater inducements to the lover of the sport than the club links nearer at home. Possibly because people enjoy getting out of call of the house and desire to be down where they can put and drive where the waves are whispering encouragement nearby. The links there are good and Manager Bldgood looks after visitors.

GOVERNMENT BY COMMISSION

The Hilo Tribune has taken up, not the defense of, but the light for a government by commission in Hawaii and in its issue of the 15th inst. professes to see all kinds of signs that a change in that direction is imminent.

To begin with paper designates the present system as one of jobbery, wastefulness, multiplicity of sinecures and travesty on local self government. It must be admitted that its home town furnishes some reason for such a sentence, but if its glasses are so weak that the paper cannot see beyond Puno or the Four Mile bridge it ought to consult an optician.

A normal pair of eyes would, however, be able, without the aid of glasses, to see Maui, Oahu and Kauai and that they have got rid of the jobbery and wastefulness that luxuriated before local self government was introduced, and that superfluous officials are as scarce in these three counties as snow in Kailua. If it made use of a strong pair of lenses it might discover some thing of interest in the line of government by commission in the Philippines. It might be surprised to find the most flagrant jobbery, for instance in the water supply business; the most astounding wastefulness in supplies for hospitals, schools, etc., and the payment of such salaries to a host of Deputy Clerk's Assistant's servants that there is no money left for improvements and that there wouldn't have been any to speak of if the troops stationed there had not been employed in making a few roads in the neighborhood of Manila. And all this in spite of the residents being taxed higher than in any other country known.

The reason that Hawaii County, the lacking a government by commission, has slide down to the Philippine rung of the ladder is not very difficult to discover. It is caused by the refusal of a great number of its most intelligent and influential men to help it upward. There are a great many men who designate the Americanization of Hawaii as a dream seem to have forgotten that Thirteen American colonies began to put the dreams of a certain Jean Jacques Rousseau into working shape one hundred and thirty years ago and made a success of it, and that they and their subsequent partners have ever since been materializing the fantasies of dreamers, from John Law's financial schemes to Jules Verne's wildest flights.

"God helps him who helps himself" might be the superscription to the American constitution, and the successive administrations have applied this maxim to the new territories that were gradually attracted to the original nucleus. And it has been found to work well and probably will do so here in Hawaii.

Paternalism is the proper thing for babies, but the sooner the child is taught self-reliance, the sooner it will be earning a position for itself and be able to contribute to the comfort of the family.—The Garden Island.

seeds of thought as they went along life's pathway: a verse by some good author, a sentiment gleaned from the experiences of men, not to change any belief or to upset any faith, but to serve as a cheerful alibi a world all too selfish and self-centered.

I got one or two in almost every mail, from here and there, little booklets which give me a lift. From the author himself often, from the writing of some dead but living poet. These sentiments are not only helpful but an evidence of remembrance. The only difference between the interested people who advertise glad tidings, and those who keep them in jars, is that the former are willing to pay out their money in order to give them away. And many of the writers furnished are not even denominational, but sermons preached by men who never professed Unitarianism. Moreover these interested people who advertise, do not seek to bring members into their churches, or in any way to proselyte any one. It is not a part of the Unitarian propaganda. It never will be. But it is their earnest prayer and everyday endeavor to convince others of what they themselves believe to be the truth, simply because we have been told by Scripture to prove all things; because the truth makes us free; because a knowledge of the Truth induces happiness, virtue, long life and prosperity.

GIRL IN DANGER

similar, but such examples are food for thought when the first hue and cry is "ghosts."

Said an occult student this morning to a Star man: "Over enthusiastic people are sometimes almost hysterical in the way they recklessly identify persons as so-called mediums. We are all mediums, in a sense, but how many know what is a medium in the ordinary acceptance of the word? If, mind you I say if, there were any psychic phenomena in the Pecarick house as a result of the presence of a medium, why should the Spanish girl be said to be the medium? May Pecarick not be the so-called medium? It strikes me that there is a great deal of the impulsiveness of the mob in the greedy way the Pecaricks' story of Esperanza being a medium was swallowed."

I have seen the girl and I believe if she told all she knew she would relate the story of a little domestic rumormonger, real or theatrical, spontaneous or for a purpose."

Mrs. Pecarick says that while the furniture was carrying-on she realized that an evil or a curious spirit, seeking something, was upon or in the house and she called out, demanding that he or she or it make known his, her or its wants and then quit fooling. But no answer came.

There were no manifestations last night. The ghost probably realized he had the wrong number.

Captain Moses, U. S. N., Commander of the U. S. S. Iroquois here and Assistant to the Inspector of the Twelfth Lighthouse District, this morning in the S. S. Mauna Loa returned from an official business trip to Hawaii.

TEST CASE

ernment. Mr. Lewis made a short but strong argument for his side, taking up but half an hour of the court's time, and submitting the matter on a brief. The chief points in his argument were as follows:

The ground of demurrer as to the first count is that corporations organized under the laws of Hawaii are not corporations organized by authority of any laws of Congress. As to the second count the ground is that the law is not applicable to an election at which a Delegate is to be voted for, that is the word "Representative" in the Act does not include the word "Delegate", that the word "Representative" is the denomination and designation of a well defined and known class of person "Representatives in Congress," and does not include a separate, distinct and known class of persons, "Delegates in Congress."

It was held that the Haleakala corporation came into existence pursuant to the laws of the Kingdom of Hawaii. The Organic Act continued in force the laws of Hawaii. It is asked that if the court believes that there is a distinction between corporations existing before the passage of the Organic Act and of those organized since that time, this shall be indicated. The contention is made that there is no such distinction. It is held that the Territorial acts have a distinct and well defined meaning of their own as have state statutes and that Territorial laws are not "laws of Congress" within the meaning of the term. A number of cases are cited to sustain this contention.

Under the second count, whether the term "Representative" includes that of "Delegate," it is contended that while in a certain sense the "Delegate" from a Territory is the representative of his constituents in Congress, still it does not follow that he is a "Representative" that word being used with a capital R to denote exactly the class of persons to whom reference is made. It is held that strictly speaking a delegate to Congress is not a member of Congress. He has a seat but no vote. It is stated that in fifteen statutes where the term "Member of Congress" appears the same is followed by the word "Delegate" and in twenty-two statutes where the word "Representative" appears, it also is followed by the word "Delegate," thus showing that the two terms are entirely separate in the practice followed by Congress itself. In no case was Attorney Lewis able to find a statute in which the term "Representative" appeared that it was not followed by the separate definition of "Delegate."

The answering argument made by U. S. District Attorney Breckons was a mastery one, taking an entirely different point of view from that of the opposing counsel. While Lewis had worked entirely on the legal and technical phase of the question, Breckons looked toward the intent of the Act. He said in part:

"Upon the first count I am inclined to have some doubts, in fact more personal doubt certainly than is expressed by the Attorney General of the United States. In this connection it may be held that the Haleakala Ranch Company, being a corporation organized under the laws of the monarchy, continuing under the Republic and then still holding its existence under the Organic Act, is not a 'corporation organized under the laws of Congress.' I would ask Your Honor in his decision to note this and render an opinion on both phases, as otherwise it might be necessary to file a second suit against a corporation which has been organized since the Organic Act."

"Coming to the second count I am glad to state, to know and to feel sure that we have reached a state in the legal affairs of this country where the strict interpretation, one sided, technical rules are being cast aside, those rulings through which so many law-breakers have escaped. More attention now is being paid to the intent of the lawmakers when they passed this Act or that Statute, what good will result from it or what evil will be remedied. Now we find out from the debates which took place, from the searching of the minds of the lawmakers in this manner, what they intended. For years this has been the trend of judicial decisions and of legislative acts."

"One hundred and fifty years ago, when there were some hundreds of crimes which were all punishable by death, it was necessary to watch these technicalities to safeguard the life of a man. In those days if the little boy running along the street picked up an apple as it lay fallen on the ground from a tree, he might be hanged, while if he had plucked it from the bough he would go free. But these days are changed."

"This law on which Your Honor will render his decision started, as I recall it, from the insurance scandals, where it was shown that at Albany and in National campaigns, great sums of money had been spent for political purposes, many times none of the purest. But the fact remains and has been held to be so by the courts that if I am a stockholder in Ewa plantation, or a stockholder in the Haleakala Ranch Company, no one has the slightest right to touch a dollar of the funds of that company to be used for the political purposes of any party.

Section 3. The continuance of any such violation, after conviction, shall be deemed a new offense for each day on which the same is so continued.

"Now let us turn to the debates in Congress on this Act. There is shown and shown in a manner which all must recognize, what Congress meant when it passed the Act entitled 'An Act to prevent corporations from making money contributions in political elections.' I call your Honor's attention to the title of this bill. It is not in reference to Representatives with a capital letter or with a small letter, or to Senators or to Delegates. It is against corporations which make money contributions to political campaigns.

"I call Your Honor's attention to the fact that in the entire debate in Congress in both the House and Senate there was no distinction made between Representative and Delegate. In this debate I quote from a Congressman who says that the matter was mentioned by President Roosevelt in his message. I shall be glad to find this to show to Your Honor.

"Do you believe for a moment? Can any man believe that Congress would pass a law by which it would prevent Uncle Joe Cannon in Illinois, from spending a single cent given him by a corporation for his election and allow Prince Cupid to spend $1,000,000 for the very same purpose here? If I were in Rhode Island would Congress think of passing a law preventing me, should I be running for Congress, from spending a cent, while Senator Aldrich, with his intellect, his training, his ability in the handling of men, would be allowed to do what he wished, when I would be a pigny in Congress with what I could do as against his power in the Senate?"
